

RIGHT-TO-FARM NOTICE COVENANT

Minnehaha County has a vibrant agricultural economy. The agricultural sector in our county is the leading industry in the unincorporated portions of the county and the continued well-being of this industry entails certain characteristics and requires particular safeguards.

Given the nature of agriculture, some impacts or intrusions on neighboring land uses are inevitable. Dust, smoke, noise, odors, the use of various fertilizers or pesticides, odd hours of operation, and the operation of many types of heavy equipment and machinery are all common in the agricultural sector. For this reason, the majority of the county's rural area is zoned to allow for continued agricultural production. Some non-farm rural residents fail to understand that, by choosing to live in the country, they are also choosing to live among working farms and ranches. Country living also brings particular responsibilities in areas such as the erection and maintenance of fences, the control of pets or livestock, and the control of noxious weeds.

In order to assist in raising the awareness of rural residents about the realities of living among farms and ranches, Minnehaha County has instituted an informational tool called a right-to-farm notice covenant. Before any residence may be constructed in the rural portions of the county, such a covenant must be filed on the particular property at the county Register of Deeds Office. The covenant becomes a permanent part of the deed record on the property and acknowledges the wide variety of potential impacts which might result from living in the agricultural sector.

State law governs the filing of any document on a parcel of property. The right-to-farm notice covenant form must be properly completed in both the 'prepared by' and the 'legal description' sections. Your signature on the form must also be notarized. Do not make any marks or notations in the margins of the attached form or the Register of Deeds may be prohibited from filing the covenant. Also, please use only a black pen when completing the form. Any other color of ink may require that the Register of Deeds add additional charges onto the standard filing fee.
